PROGRAM CONTENT:

Course content	The long term preservation of analogue and digital photographs, video recordings and digital archival cultural heritage. The students will not only acquire technological insight, but they will also use real-world projects at partner institutions in Germany and elsewhere, in order to prepare for their field of activity. Students will practice interdisciplinarity, internationality and communication to specialists –a prerequisite for successful problem solving strategies and a crucial skill required for the tight job market in the preservation field.
Structure	The curriculum's structure was chosen to enable a heterogeneous group of students with different preliminary knowledge to compensate for deficiencies and to support special interest. All modules are rated according to the European Credit Transfer System (120 ECTS points).
Off-campus conservation work	During the third semester students engage with two five week projects in a partner institution or at the academy.
